What is the DOK of the assessment? DOK 1,3,4

DOK 1: Students are able to define and describe the use of art elements, principles, style, media, and /or techniques. They can identify the function of art in a culture, and make connections between visual art and other content areas.(example) Students are asked to "compose" a picture from ideas they have generated reflecting their life and culture to be put in a time capsule for future generations to see.

DOK 3: Students create original artwork within a set of teacher-directed parameters which could include subject matter, themed, historical style, elements and principles, media, and /or technique. They can express a personal point of view through the creation of artwork, and create art that serves a purpose in society. Students justify artistic decisions and analyze and evaluate the effectiveness of communicating meaning in art. (example) Students write down ideas and sketch images that will symbolize their message, and then put their ideas together to create a final "picture or composition."

DOK 4: Students select a topic of personal interest as a theme/subject for creation of art and define an artistic problem. The conduct research using a variety of sources and develop ideas through series of studies. They choose and use elements, principles, style, media, and techniques that will best express the intended meaning. Students can write an artist's statement that explains and defends artistic decisions. Students develop and defend personal answers to aesthetic questions. (example) Students create a final composition based on a series of idea generating activities (lists, sketches) Students write a statement naming the objects and images they used and telling what they symbolize. Students discuss the choices they made and any changes they would made from the first sketches to the final and any changes they would make with more time.

response answers relating to knowledge of form, aesthetics, and context, idea generation, and expression of ideas through an original artwork. Levels 1 – 4 awarded. Because the answers require specific academic language and direct response to questions posed, and questions are aligned to CAS, the scoring criteria are also aligned to the standards and GLEs identified previously. Rubric Aligned with Standards Score 2b. Are the score categories clearly defined and coherent across performance levels? Provide an explanation of your response: Somewhat; descriptors are not clearly defined, for example, "student expressed ideas in greater detail" OR "The response is higher level than most in this specific age level" does not provide ample qualifications to determine if task was clearly met or exceeded. that students have prior understanding or knowledge of these artworks.

3e. If applicable, what type of accommodations should be considered to ensure that students with special needs can fully access the content represented by the task or set of items reviewed? Presentation accommodations: Students with visual impairment will NOT be able to complete assessment as administered. They will need to respond tactilely and verbally. ESL and SPED students will likely need more visual and verbal modes of access as well.

Response Accommodations: SSN students, depending on degree of impairment, might need assistive devices. See above for ESL, SPED and Visually Impaired students.

Setting Accommodations: This might be required due to the highly visual and sensory-stimulating nature of the visual art classroom. Moving students with sensory issues to a stimulus-neutral environment might help them to maintain focus on a text-rich section of the assessment without experiencing sensory overload.

Timing and scheduling accommodations: Time may not be appropriate for some students to be able to think critically, write coherent responses, and create effective artwork.

Linguistic accommodations: Because this assessment is text-rich, it is highly recommended the linguistic load be reduced for ELL students.

Accommodations are commonly categorized in five ways: presentation, response, setting, and timing and scheduling:

- Presentation Accommodations Allow students to access information in ways that do not require them to visually read standard print. These alternate modes of access are auditory, multi-sensory, tactile, and visual.
- Response Accommodations Allow students to complete activities, assignments, and assessments in different ways or to solve or organize problems using some type of assistive device or organizer.
- Setting Accommodations Change the location in which a test or assignment is given or the conditions of the assessment setting.
- Timing and Scheduling Accommodations Increase the allowable length of time to complete an assessment or assignment and perhaps change the way the time is organized.
- Linguistic Accommodations Allow English language learners (ELLs) to access academic construct measured by reducing the linguistic load of an assessment.
 The accommodation is based on an ELL's limited English language proficiency, which is different than an accommodation based on a student's disability or a cognitive need.

3f: Identify and write down the accommodations permitted for this assessment: Only one minor accommodation: teacher reads most of the questions/directions aloud.

real world, new context, situation, problem or challenge? Provide an explanation of your response: Somewhat. Students are asked to use limited higher-order thinking skills (interpretation, create, and reflect) when formulating responses to short answer questions and creating.
Interpretation is an important component of critical thinking, a skill required in real-world situations. Students are asked to consider their time and place in the world and create and artwork that communicates that idea to a future generation. The personal connection to the students

4b. To what extent do you think the knowledge and skills tested by the assessment can provide good information about what students have learned in the classroom? Provide an explanation of your response: Somewhat. This assessment is an indicator of learning about how art can communicate personal ideas and information to an audience. It ranges from identifying personal symbols within an artwork from a historical context, to creating an artwork using symbols that are personally relevant. The assessment allows students to communicate their knowledge in multiple modes (creating graphic visual images, writing) and to demonstrate thinking at various levels of Bloom's Taxonomy (identifying information about artwork, creating art, and reflecting).
